

DUBOIS TALKS OF MORMONISM

Idaho's Senator Bitterly Assails Roosevelt And His Attitude On This Question.

ALL HIS SPEECH IS VERY CAUSTIC

Charges Him With Sending Speakers Into The State To Aid The Mormon Church To Win The Victory.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—President Roosevelt was directly charged in the senate today with using his influence for the election of republican Mormon candidates in the recent election in Idaho and Utah. The charge was made by Senator Dubois in the course of a speech in which he discussed the right of Reed Smoot to a seat in the senate. The address was of considerable length, the first portion being devoted to a review of the Mormon church. Mr. Dubois asserted the control of the church to be complete in the hierarchy, consisting of the presidency and the twelve apostles, of which Mr. Smoot was one. This control he maintained, was ecclesiastical, political and commercial, and was exercised completely over followers who come principally from foreign countries. The constant tendency, he said, was to make the church and state one, with the control in the church.

Polygamist Relations.

Polygamist relations were being sustained, Mr. Dubois said, by President Joseph Smith and a majority of the twelve apostles. Continually there was contracting of new polygamist marriages surreptitiously arranged by the church in Canada, Mexico, or on the high seas. Polygamists, he said, occupy the highest positions, politically and in the church, and constitute the wealthiest and most powerful members of the church organization. This is a change, he asserted, from the old days when polygamy was entered into indifferently. Now the polygamists are selected by officers of the church and in this way is being built up a cult and aristocracy of polygamists. But no record of polygamist marriages is kept, which is available for the American people. Because of this, he pointed out, the faculty of passing a national law prohibiting the practice.

Absolute Sway.

Politically, he said, the Mormon church and not the state, would do and is extending its control in Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon. When Brigham H. Roberts was expelled from congress because he was a self-confessed polygamist, Mr. Dubois said, he was at once elevated to a high position in the church. As to Senator Smoot, he said, it made no difference whether he was or was not a polygamist. The senator was a pillar in the church, and in control of its temporal, spiritual and political policies; and was selected for the senate because of this position in the church.

Smoot the Church.

"Smoot," he said, "represents the church and not the state, and would do the bidding of the church before he would serve the real interests of the state or of the nation. By being an apostle of the church Smoot is a member of this high conspiracy, and by his acquiescence, supports the plans and aims of the conspiracy." The breaking down of the influence of the church in politics, Mr. Dubois asserted, would do more than anything else to put a stop to polygamy.

Law and Order.

Turning his attention to the campaign preceding the recent election, Mr. Dubois read the press dispatches of October 22, which stated the President had sent Secretary Taft into Idaho to speak in advocacy of law and order. At that time, Mr. Dubois said, he had telegraphed the President that the only issue in Idaho was the desire of the Mormon hierarchy to continue to dominate the politics of the state and that the President had been misled if he thought there was any other issue. The republican state platform, he said, was absolutely silent regarding law and order, and notwithstanding the democratic platform had denounced the murder of Gov. Leavenworth and demanded the conviction of the guilty party, none of the democratic speakers had discussed any subject save that of Mormonism, hence there was no other issue in the Idaho campaign.

Former Messages.

Mr. Dubois referred to messages of Presidents Buchanan, Johnson, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Cleveland, and citing what he termed "the menace of Mormonism" and proceeded: "I call attention to these messages of the president for two purposes: one to indicate the views of our former executives; the other to mark the contrast between them and the present occupant of the White House. Mormonism is more insidious, more dangerous and a greater menace to our government and civilization today than it was at any particular period when these messages were addressed to congress. Yet, President Roosevelt does not deem the subject worthy of mention in a message filled with suggestions. A majority of a great committee of the senate, after patient and exhaustive research, have reported that Reed Smoot is not entitled to his seat as a senator. It was not a partisan report. No president, heretofore, has made it a matter of partisan politics; President Roosevelt has.

Bitter Words.

"When Gov. Gooding of Idaho and the chairman of the republican state committee were engaged in inciting lawbreaking and law-defying Mormons to additional lawlessness the president of the United States sent his secretary of war to Idaho to plead with the people to stand by Gov. Gooding in order to maintain law and order in Idaho. The non-Mormon citizens of Utah, and of Idaho, think they are entitled to the support of law-abiding citizens everywhere in their efforts to maintain American citizenship in these Mormon states and in they cannot receive that they have the right to demand that the president of the United States shall not use the great power vested in him in the interest of those law-defying and un-American organizations in their determination to rule the politics of this section of our country.

Two Parties.

"In Utah there is a republican Mormon party and a democratic Mormon party, both equally controlled by the Mormon hierarchy. The American party in Utah is composed of Gentiles, both republicans and democrats, who are battling there under the very shadow of this tremendous ecclesiastical power, for American citizenship, for the separation of church and state, and against the degradation of womanhood and home. It is a noble, magnificent contest they are making.

Have Abandoned Hope.

"They have abandoned all hope of political preferment, and suffer financially in their unequal struggle for American principles. President Roosevelt throws the weight of his mighty influence against the American party for the republican Mormons, and in Utah led by President Smith and Senator Smoot. He demands in Utah an endorsement of Smith and Smoot."

FATHER OF ENGLISH CHURCH NINETY-FIVE

Reverend Prebendary Robert More White Has Lived in Reigns of Five Sovereigns.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Dec. 13.—Rev. Prebendary Robert More White, vicar of Churchstoke, Montgomeryshire, who is known as "Father of the Church of England," received numerous congratulations today on the celebration of his ninety-fifth birthday. Born the same year as Thackeray and John Bright (1811), Mr. White is one of the few clergymen now living who were ordained in the reign of William IV, and one, too, who has lived in the reigns of five English sovereigns. One of his earliest memories is that of seeing Queen Victoria as an infant in his nurse's arms at Bognor in the winter of 1819. He was present, too, on the historic occasion when Edward Oxford fired at the young Queen and Prince Albert as they drove up Constitution Hill on June 10, 1840, soon after their marriage. Another of his memories is that of traveling on the Liverpool and Manchester Railway upon its first opening, Sept. 25, 1825.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—The season's program of dinners and receptions at the White House opens tonight with the dinner given by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt in honor of the members of the cabinet and their wives. It is understood that the social events at the executive mansion this winter are to be confined almost wholly to those formal functions prescribed by custom. A few casual and informal dinners, probably will be the only additions to the list of receptions and dinners which established precedent compels the President to give in honor of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, supreme court justices, members of congress and officers of the army and navy.

SUPERSTITIONS AS TO NEW SPELLING

Thirteen Club of New York Will Hear Views of Roosevelt, Twain, Matthews and Carnegie.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Dec. 13.—The Thirteen Club has decided to throw the weight of its influence in favor of the Roosevelt-Carnegie movement for simplified spelling. The club has decided to devote its 25th regular dinner, to be held at the Cafe Liberty tonight, to a careful consideration of "Superstitions Concerning Spelling." President Roosevelt, Mark Twain, Andrew Carnegie and Brandt Matthews have written their views to the architect of the club, who will present their letter at the dinner. A replica of the old blue back speller of fifty years ago, containing, however, the 300 simplified words approved by President Roosevelt, has been prepared as a souvenir of the occasion. The club takes occasion to point out that the most discussed of these words—the, their, there, program, catalog—are shortened by the omission of just thirteen letters.

ONE MILLION CHRISTMAS TREES GO TO NEW YORK

Prices Higher This Year—Mistletoe Very Scarce—Holly Plentiful, Full Of Ber- ries And Inexpensive.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Dec. 13.—The Christmas tree has made its annual appearance in Washington market. Expecting to reap a rich harvest this season, the vendors have begun to ship their stock to the city a few days earlier than usual. The air in the vicinity of the market is already filled with a strong aromatic odor of fir and pine, and before the close of the week the trees will be piled up in such big stacks that it will not be difficult for the passerby to imagine himself in a forest.

The Christmas tree trade in New York is a large business. Each year it requires many hundreds of carloads of trees to supply the city and its suburbs. One dealer estimated today that a million Christmas trees are brought into New York in the two weeks before Christmas, some of them, however, going to New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Of late years the price of the choice trees has been steadily mounting a little higher each year. The trees in Maine and Canada are becoming scarcer each year and it requires more labor to market the trees than in former years. All the available trees along the railroads have been cut and now the dealers are compelled to haul the trees from twenty to twenty-five miles before they can ship them on cars. Labor is higher than ever before and the land owners are seeking a profit, which some years ago was unthought of, as they were glad to have their lands cleared without expense, the farmers generally giving the trees for the cutting.

Almost as important as the trade in trees is the business of supplying Christmas greens to the metropolitan market. Of late years this has increased to a greater extent than has the Christmas tree trade. Mistletoe is reported scarce this year and will be the aristocrat in price. The smallest sprays to be bought at the street booths will probably bring twenty-five cents. Holly promises to be abundant, full of berries and not expensive. Laurel and pine wreaths also will be extensively used for church and hotel decoration.

Intimated in Madison Papers That the Fire Commission Is Looking for Outside Man.
Madison is in the field for a new chief of the fire department. It is intimated that several prominent members of the fire and police commission would be glad to see Henry Kline, Janesville's chief, offered the place. Mr. Kline has had to do considerable expert work for the Madison department in past years and it is possible he may be offered the position, which pays in the neighborhood of a hundred and twenty-five dollars a month with an electrician's salary beside.

They have done more. They offer to relieve the sufferer temporarily and start him well on the way to recovery, by giving to any piles patient who sends his name and address, a free trial package of the wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure in a plain sealed wrapper. There are enough of the curative elements in this trial package to greatly reduce the swelling of the affected part, to heal much of the soreness and ulceration. After the sample is gone your druggist will supply you with a box of the Pyramid for 50 cents.

Before The Footlights.

When "Dolly Varden" the most charming of modern comic operas, was first presented in New York City, it was conceded to be one of the most elaborately and picturesquely staged musical presentations of several seasons. The beauty of the stage picture is presented, complicated quite as much to the remarkable success and long run "Dolly Varden" enjoyed there and in other cities, as did the tuneful score, brilliant comedy or the electrical effects.

The story of "Painting the Town" is said to be immensely funny, while the comedy complications will appeal at once to those who enjoy a hearty laugh, while the music which has been especially composed for the piece, is planned to insure an immediate singing and whistling success.

A novel singing and dancing feature has been prepared in an ensemble number requiring the entire force of the company.

Dear, dear, this talk of another Young Corbett-Terry McGovern fight is most distressing. While I admit that "it is better far to be a was than a never was at all," yet continuous per-popularity of Lida Blasen, the star, in costumes of the droll and child, so, dainty and unique, backed by lavish and artistic scenery, gave charming Dolly, the favorite character of fiction, the best performance she has ever received on the stage.

As for the music, "Dolly Varden," by the popular composer, Julian Mitchell, is one of the most tuneful and original scores that musician or any other has ever given a comic opera.

The book, by the famous librettist, Stanislaus Stange, is full of ingenious comedy scenes and sparkling dialogue, and the title role of Dolly is one of the most brilliantly humorous parts ever written in a comic opera.

Levinne, the new piano giant, who is to be heard in recital at the Myers theatre on Dec. 18, is unique in this, that he has never attempted to make his own transcriptions of the music of the great composers in order to display his prodigious technique. "I tell my friends," he said recently, "that I am the only pianist who has never composed. It will be of the company, entitled "The Emigrants" and depicts in pantomime, dance and song the arrival in this country of groups of emigrants of all nations, who wear the national dress of their various countries.

Other features offered in the new musical novelty include a concerted national number, and the production in the second act of a very funny travesty on grand opera. This opera is given with all the dignity, care and attention as to detail.

Looks as though Harry Pulliam would again be elected the National league president. After a few more terms Harry will know something about his job.

A recent news dispatch reads as follows: "Kid Wedge, champion lightweight of Arkansas, participant in a hundred prize fights, has renounced the ring and embraced Christianity."

"He was scheduled to fight six rounds with Guy Buckles at Omaha, Neb. Instead of landing his opponent an uppercut he presented a copy of the New Testament, with a note asking Buckles to accept the Testament and profit by it."

"He also wrote a letter to the club management explaining why he could not fight."

"Wedge lost several of his most recent fights."

P. S.—Perhaps if Wedge had not had bad luck in his recent fights he would not have left the ring. Defeat is a great teacher of humility.

Secretary Taft of the war department went to the Yale-Harvard football game, and a dispatch states that an entire section was reserved for his 300 and odd pounds of brains and muscle. # The Roundup By Willie West

Even the Holiday Season Doesn't Sweeten Sport Critic's Temper.

An ice boat authority claims the famous old Her, the Scud, covered a mile in thirty-seven seconds on the Shrewsbury river, New Jersey, a few years ago. This man ought to sell mining stock for a living. He has the principal requirement.

Dear, dear, this talk of another Young Corbett-Terry McGovern fight is most distressing. While I admit that "it is better far to be a was than a never was at all," yet continuous per-fortunes between two such genuine wases as Terry and the Denver kid have but little inspiration. Time was when we all thought nothing but a cannon ball would stop Young Corbett, but we were wrong. A high ball came along and turned the trick.

President Eliot of Harvard, a most erudite educator, says basket ball and football are dishonorable sports. Perhaps the worthy president judges these games by what he would do if he were playing either of them. Then, again, perhaps his academic disposition can't tolerate youthful enthusiasm and healthy rivalry. It cannot be possible he is seeking advertising, or possibly there are no dyspepsia cures on sale in Cambridge. Perchance the profits from these games at Harvard have decreased of late and are now beneath notice. Likewise peradventure the president forgets that he ever was young himself.

Looks as though Harry Pulliam would again be elected the National league president. After a few more terms Harry will know something about his job.

A recent news dispatch reads as follows: "Kid Wedge, champion lightweight of Arkansas, participant in a hundred prize fights, has renounced the ring and embraced Christianity."

"He was scheduled to fight six rounds with Guy Buckles at Omaha, Neb. Instead of landing his opponent an uppercut he presented a copy of the New Testament, with a note asking Buckles to accept the Testament and profit by it."

"He also wrote a letter to the club management explaining why he could not fight."

"Wedge lost several of his most recent fights."

P. S.—Perhaps if Wedge had not had bad luck in his recent fights he would not have left the ring. Defeat is a great teacher of humility.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Rain or snow tonight, Friday decidedly colder.

MAJORITY NOT ALWAYS RIGHT

At the Twilight club meeting, the other night, the United States senate was freely discussed, and arguments presented for and against electing senators by popular vote.

Some of the speakers contended that because the government in this country is a people's government, that "we, the people," are competent to pass on all questions, and, therefore, should be permitted to say by direct vote, who should represent us in the upper house of congress.

The statement may seem startling, and yet it is true, that majorities are not always right. It is safe to go farther and say that on many questions of great importance concrete action is necessary for safe and wholesome results. This is true of every department in life when men are brought together by common interests.

The church recognizes it and every branch of work is placed in the hands of a few representatives, who are held responsible, and these are frequently appointed.

The business world is governed by the same principle. The stockholders of large corporations are never consulted as to policy or methods pursued. All details are left to a small board of directors who in turn select a smaller board of officers to conduct the business.

The people, the masses, the great majority represent an unwieldy proposition, and under certain conditions, in the hands of designing leadership, as dangerous as a cumbrousness.

The mob element, which breaks out every now and then carrying everything before it, is the people's tribunal. A hasty court, inspired by passion and uncontrolled anger defying law and order. The mob is a menace, and the people who encourage it are wrong.

A few years ago, a majority of the voters in a dozen states or more, aided by a respectable minority, in every state, rolled up a vote of 6 million strong for free silver.

These people, many of them honest in purpose, were wrong in judgment, and it is well for the states which voted for the dangerous measure, that majorities were not permitted to rule.

The state of Kansas was cursed for many years with populism, and suffered because "we, the people," controlled by majority vote.

The city of Chicago has been in the throes of municipal ownership for the past two years, because a majority of the voters, who never paid a poll tax, held the balance of power.

What is true of Chicago, in this respect, is true of all large centers of population. This is why Hearst and his yellow creed, has such a following, and it demonstrates the danger of majority rule.

There are some questions of public interest, connected with city government, that should never be submitted to popular vote, and when the nation recovers from the spasms of insanity, with which it is now struggling, city charters should be amended, so that municipal ownership of public utilities, and kindred questions, can be settled by the taxpayers and property owners, rather than by majority vote, which in many cases means an irresponsible mob.

"We, the people," passed the state primary law. We wanted it because we had been led to believe that the state was machine-ridden, and corrupt to the core.

The primary law was the people's forum, and through it we would purify the state, and every man would be an independent voter. It was expected to arouse individual interest and enthusiasm in affairs of government and give us majority rule.

How did it work? After a long and expensive pre-convention campaign, where every man was urged to do his duty, less than one man in three put in an appearance at the primary election.

In other words, "we, the people," were satisfied to permit one third of the voters of the state to select our candidates, and we endorsed their action in November, and submitted gracefully to minority rule.

The scramble for office on the part of office-seekers, appeals to the minority, "We, the people," care but little about it. A constitutional amendment for electing senators by popular vote, will not change conditions, so far as this spirit of indifference is concerned, and will add nothing to the strength of the upper house of congress.

CHILD LABOR

Among the reforms, so vigorously exploited today, one of the most prominent is the child labor question. Some of the leading magazines have sent staff correspondents through the manufacturing districts of New England and the south, and their readers have been entertained with heart-rending tales of existing conditions.

A number of states have passed laws, placing an age limit, at which a child may be employed, and state inspectors have been appointed to see that these laws are enforced.

The state of Illinois has such a law, and the age limit is fixed at 16 years.

The law is all right in theory, but like many other measures, of this class, is impractical, as is being demonstrated every day in Chicago, where an effort is made to rigidly enforce it.

Chicago, like every other city, has some things about it that are not ideal. It is a city largely composed of industrial workers and the homes occupied by this class of citizens are of the humble sort, and usually blessed with a wealth of children.

The father is the only bread-winner, and the demands of the home are so strenuous that the burden is frequently more than he can bear.

When the boys, in this class of homes, reach the age of 14, they realize the importance of learning something to aid in the support of the family, and the father and mother are perfectly willing to encourage the ambition.

Their services are in demand, but when application is made for work, they are confronted with the age limit problem, and advised that they must go to school for at least another year.

This they refuse to do, and as a result an army of truant boys swarm the streets of Chicago today, forming habits of idleness and vice that will curse them for years to come.

The argument is advanced that these boys ought to be in school, and the question, from the standpoint of what ought to be, is not debatable, but the fact remains that they are not. There are some problems in life which demand settlement, without regard to what ought to be, and this is one of them.

There is now and then a home where a boy can be compelled, against his will, to go to school until he is sixteen years of age, but these homes are the exception, and not the rule.

The average boy is susceptible to reason by the time he is fourteen. If the home needs his earnings, and the father feels that it is entitled to them, there is but little pressure used to keep him in school. He becomes a truant and a loafer, when he might better be at work.

There are many abuses in the realm of child labor, which should be corrected, but there is no law which can justly be applied to all cases. There are many homes where the labor of the sturdy boy is the only thing that stands between the home and the poorhouse, and there are thousands of others where the boys might better be at work at fourteen, than to be loafing the streets.

The length of a workday, and the age limit for school children, are two questions, which will never be satisfactorily settled by law.

People who had the pleasure of listening to Hawley Smith, last Tuesday evening, discovered that it was possible to entertain and instruct an audience by the use of very simple language, which any child could understand. Mr. Smith is a great platform speaker, and his popularity is largely due to his simplicity.

Mr. Cortelyou's fate is still in the hands of the senate, with his confirmation somewhat in doubt. If Secretary Shaw can be persuaded to retain the treasury portfolio it will be a good thing for the country.

Cornelius P. Shea is still in the toils, and the evidence against him, furnished by his old associates, is damaging in the extreme. If he doesn't land in jail, it will be the fault of tardy justice, organized labor is not being benefited by the exposure.

With 150,000 new freight and passenger schedules to commence on, the rate commission is likely to be busy all summer. It's more of a trick to run a railroad, than to tell how it ought to be done.

ONLY A TEMPORARY CRAZE.

Pilgrims From "the Other Side" Lapse Into "United States" Again.

Recurrent peril, threatening our American speech, becomes imminent about this time of year. For there now returns from "the other side" the traveler, rather more likely to be feminine, who, swollen with the pride of her first ocean voyage, having stuffed her trunk to bursting with dutiable articles, gals even with a modicum of government by smuggling for herself and family. Upon her avid tongue such useful little words as "wore" and "been" suffer a sea change into something rich and strange, approximating respectively the verb of garmenture and the popular name of a common vegetable. One even encounters accents which distort "clerk" into "clark." But the mal-treatment is, happily, in most cases only temporary. First, the family, despite pained and patient correction, fall from grace. Presently the enthusiast herself gives signs of lapsing. She imperceptibly graduates into the convalescent state of George Ade's rising social light, who every Saturday "look a bath in the bathtub." And, long before the sewing circle has heard the last of her views of the Eiffel tower and the intricacies of continental currency the healthful home atmosphere of Pontiac, Mich., or Topeka, Kan., has done its work and the returned exile's common speech is again according to Noah Webster, unabridged.—Collier's Weekly.

WAS FINED $10 FOR RUNNING A FERRET

Fred Latta of the Town of Rock Found Rabbit-Hunting Rather Expensive.

For running a ferret in hunting rabbits, Fred Latta of the town of Rock was arrested by Deputy Game-Warden Peter Drafahl and upon entering a plea of guilty in municipal court was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and costs amounting to $4.90.

The attitude of the fish and game laws towards the rabbit differs in various sections of the state. There is a closed season for "Bunny" from March 1 to Sept. 1, but it is specified in the same law that the owner or occupant of any land may hunt and kill rabbits thereon at any time without a license. Section 97 makes it unlawful to hunt, take, kill, or pursue rabbits in one's possession while hunting, in 17 counties, including Rock and Walworth. A fine of from $10 to $25 is provided for all infractions, and all ferrets used in violation of the law are declared a public nuisance and may be seized and disposed of by the game-warden. In Dane and numerous other neighboring counties the ferret law is not in force.

Pursuant to Article seven, section five, constitution and by-laws of the National Encampment United Spanish War Veterans, the annual election of officers of Harry L. Gifford Camp No. 23, United Spanish War Veterans, is hereby ordered, at the next regular meeting, December 13th, 1906. Elective officers as follows: commander, senior vice commander, junior vice commander, chaplain, officer of the day, officer of the guard, and three trustees. Those to be filled by appointment, are adjutant and quartermaster. All comrades are earnestly requested to be present and participate in this election, it being the first since the mustering in of this camp. By order of Edw. S. Palmer, Commander, John L. Snyder, Adjutant.

Church Suppers. Popular: Church suppers and Christmas sales at the Congregational and Methodist church parlors last evening attracted such large crowds that one of them, at least, hundreds could not be accommodated and were turned away. It being Wednesday night the merchants and clerks, instead of returning to their homes for supper, went to swell the throngs. The suppers were exceedingly good in both instances and those who partook were well pleased. Both of the sales, also, were liberally patronized.

'Never Too Late' to Learn. It is strange that not one person in a thousand knows how to help a man on with his coat or a lady with her jacket. They all make the mistake of holding the garment too high, especially the last sleeve. They lift it so that a man nearly dislocates his arm reaching for it. The more furiously he grabs and claws and lurches for it the higher they hold it, until the wretched victim would have to get on a pair of stilts to find the arm-hole.

The proper way? Why, hold the coat so that the armholes are as low down as the man's waist—taking care to keep the skirt of the garment off the floor, of course. If there is any struggle to find the last armhole, drop it still lower; never raise it. Drop it until his hand slips into it naturally.

He Was Just Pilfering. Deacon Bosworth always meant well, even though he had a tendency to use words of whose meaning he was not always cognizant, says a writer in the Boston Herald. When he was sexton of the Baptist church at Putnam, Ct., he was seen coming out of the vestry, where he had been putting around at odd jobs during the day.

Miss Fannie Austin, who is now Mrs. F. H. Hutzler, asked him what he had been doing all day in the church. The deacon's reply, "Just pilfering around, miss, just pilfering around," was received with some surprise.

BETTER SERVICE THEIR DEMAND

RESIDENTS ON THE MINERAL POINT DIVISION.

OF THE ST. PAUL RAILROAD

Met at the Hotel Myers in Janesville Today and Gave Vigorous Expression to Views on Subject.

Representatives of the commercial associations of several cities assembled at the Hotel Myers today to discuss ways and means of securing better passenger service on the Mineral Point division of the St. Paul road.

At the present time there are two trains a day each way between Janesville and the other at Milton Junction—in traveling to Milwaukee during the forenoon. Through service to the state metropolis and a train on Sunday are considered immediate necessities and the road is to be urgently requested to install one new daily passenger train each way by springtime.

In the discussion this afternoon it was pointed out, with some show of righteous indignation, that this line is one of the best paying of the Milwaukee road and that its commercial and industrial interests are being developed rapidly, whereas, within the past five or six years scarcely any improvement has been made in the service.

In view of the further fact that the C. & N. W. Ry. Co. has promised to put on an extra train each way, daily, on its Lancaster branch running west from Madison to Platteville and Lancaster, the people living along the Mineral Point division feel that the Milwaukee road can well afford to make the same improvement on a line which passes through a much richer and more densely populated section of the state.

The new Sunday train which the Northwestern installed on the Lancaster branch three weeks ago has proven a popular success and has received general patronage and it is felt that the demand for the same accommodation on the part of the St. Paul of the Mineral Point division is entirely reasonable and timely.

Much regret was expressed that Janesville and Beloit, through some oversight, were not represented at the session. W. W. Winton of Madison, district passenger agent of all that was said, but made no comments.

Chairman Wright was empowered by a motion to appoint a committee of nine, with himself as chairman, composed of representatives of the various important points on the line, to take up various subjects under consideration today with the railroad company.

Besides those already mentioned, there were present at the meeting: George E. Thorp, C. F. Christenson, and R. A. Eiter, of Monroe; George D. Orpat and A. B. Grindell, of Platteville; A. B. Kildow and F. E. Miles, of Brodhead; W. H. McCutcheon, of Whitewater; William G. Brewer, of Milwaukee; Henry C. Campbell and F. W. MacKenzie, representatives of the Milwaukee Journal.

EX-SENATOR BROWN DIES OF HIS WOUND

BULLET FIRED BY MRS. ANNA M. BRADLEY PROVES FATAL.

SHOCK ROUSES DISEASE

Woman Is Near Collapse—Attorneys Will Claim She Was Justified By the "Unwritten Law."

Washington, Dec. 13.—Former United States Senator Arthur Brown, of Utah, who was shot in his apartments at the Hotel Raleigh Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Anna M. Bradley, of Salt Lake City, died at midnight Wednesday night at the Emergency hospital.

Mrs. Bradley was notified of Mr. Brown's death at 12:45. She made no comment.

Mr. Brown's life was prolonged for several hours by the injection of salt solution and by administering oxygen.

Dr. Charles White, superintendent of the hospital, declared that Senator Brown's case was one of the most remarkable that had ever come under his observation. His death was due to complications brought on by kidney trouble, and not to septic poison as a result of the wound. The shock of the bullet wound, however, had aggravated the affection of the kidneys until these organs refused to perform their functions.

No Ante-Mortem Statement.

One of the assistant district attorneys made another fruitless effort tonight to secure an ante-mortem statement, but Senator Brown refused to talk.

Doctors W. L. Sheep and Max Brown and Miss Alice Brown, of Columbus, Ohio, the former senator's son and daughter, respectively, were at the bedside when he expired. He had been unconscious for several hours. After the autopsy is performed the body will be taken to Salt Lake City for burial.

Mrs. Bradley Near Collapse. Mrs. Bradley is on the verge of collapse and her physicians say that it may be several days before she will be able to be arraigned in court. She will be transferred from the house of detention to a cell in the district jail.

The prisoner-to-day refused to pose for a photograph when the police photographer called at the house of detention.

Mrs. Bradley's attorneys will set up the defense that she was justified, under the "unwritten law," in shooting Mr. Brown.

Mrs. Anna C. Adams, mother of Maude Adams, the actress, was notified of Senator Brown's death by Dr. White. She will arrive in Washington Thursday and will accompany the body to Salt Lake City. Mrs. Adams' name has been brought into the case in connection with letters which she wrote Brown, and which were found in the possession of Mrs. Bradley when she was arrested. The former senator's son says Mrs. Adams has long been a personal friend of the family.

Story of the Tragedy.

Mr. Brown came to the senate in 1896 when Utah was admitted to the union. He served about 15 months. He had been prominent as a criminal lawyer in his early career in Utah, but in later years had been giving his attention to mining cases. It was to appear as counsel before the supreme court of the United States on Monday, in a mining case, that he came to Washington, where he was followed by Mrs. Bradley, who, it is

CHILD LABOR ITS TOPIC

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION HAS WARM DISCUSSION.

Defense of Mine and Southern. Mill Owners Answered by Representatives of Workmen's Bodies.

New York, Dec. 12.—The National Civic Federation began its fifth annual meeting at the Park Avenue hotel Wednesday. There were about 250 persons present, including a number of leading men in commerce, labor, the professions and other walks of life.

The meeting was called to order by August Belmont, the president, in an address Mr. Belmont reviewed briefly the two topics for discussion at the first day's session, namely "Child Labor," and "Government by Injunction." The warm discussion of these two questions which followed, was participated in by a number of men well qualified to speak thereon.

W. J. Richards, superintendent of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal company, defended the mine owners with reference to the "breaker boys" of the anthracite district. "The employers in Pennsylvania," he said, "are not the men of grasping cupidity that they have been pictured. They want the boys to go to school and the mine owners have helped in the establishment of the best public schools and the employment of the best teachers."

The employment of boys in the mines brought on a sharp discussion in which John Mitchell, W. A. May, general manager of the Pennsylvania Coal company, and others took part. Among other things Mr. May said: "Give us credit for what we are trying to do. We are spending money in keeping the boys warm and in trying to keep the dust out of the breaker house. Believe that we have some humanity."

Elison A. Smythe, president of cotton mills in South Carolina, declared that he could refute the charges against child labor in the southern cotton mills. He said the custom in the south was to employ whole families, and that unless the children are employed the rest of the family cannot be hired.

John Golden, president of the Textile workers of Fall River, stated that when, some four years ago, he was commissioned by the American Textile Workers of America to study the conditions in South Carolina, and he contemplated visiting a certain mill, he was warned from doing so by the statement that the owner had sworn to shoot the first northern man that came down there interfering with his help.

Mr. Gompers, the last speaker, said that when he sent James Leonard, of New Orleans, to one of the towns of Mississippi for the purpose of trying to make an investigation of the conditions of the cotton operatives there, Leonard was quietly informed that unless he left the state at once he would be escorted out by the police.

A resolution was adopted providing that the presidents of the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Federation of Labor, the general Federation of Women's clubs, the National Educational association, the American Economic association, the National Conference of Charities and Corrections and the national child labor committee, be invited to name seven members to act with a like committee of the National Civic Federation as a commission to make a thorough investigation of the whole subject of child labor in the United States.

The annual banquet of the association was held at the Park Avenue hotel Wednesday night.

REBELS WELL ORGANIZED.

New Movement in Ping-Kiang, China, Is Anti-dynastic.

Peking, Dec. 13.—Information reached Peking Wednesday that the rebels who recently entered Ping-Kiang, province of Kiang-Si, constitute a considerable, well organized force, equipped with modern weapons. They came from Kowloon province. The movement, which is anti-dynastic, is quite new, having no connection with other uprisings or disturbances in central China. The rebels at Ping-Kiang are not molesting the Chinese inhabitants or the foreign missionaries.

Personal Friend of Lincoln Dies. Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Maltland Bond, a prominent retired business man of Watertown, died Tuesday night, aged 72 years. He was at one time mayor of Quincy, Ill., and was a personal friend of Abraham Lincoln.

Smuggling of Trees Seems a Peculiar Action, but several women have engaged in it—not as a business, of course, but on their return from European trips, says a correspondent of the New York Press. The trees are those attractive little Dutch cedars for Christmas. In American cities their price is high, whereas over in Rotterdam and Antwerp they are sold for a few cents. A thrifty nation from the Quaker City who was abroad recognized the possibility of such importations, and she bought a round dozen before she left Holland. When she disembarked on this side with her little forest she surely explained that she was passionately fond of green things, and sympathizing friends had presented the plants to aid her in passing the time on the ocean. The customs inspector did not have the courage to suggest the lumber duty applied to such trifles, so in they came. Friends are following Mrs. Penn's example.

Violated Child Labor Laws. East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 13.—Fourteen merchants and business men Wednesday entered pleas of guilty to charges of violating the Illinois child labor laws. The charges aggregated $2, and a fine of five dollars was assessed in each case.

Minneapolis Guardsmen. St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 12.—The annual convention of the Minnesota National Guard association opened in St. Paul today and will continue over tomorrow. A long list of subjects having to do with the duties of the militia and the improvement of its personnel and efficiency has been arranged for discussion.

WEATHER WONDERS

Great Achievements of the Government Experts.

FORECASTS MADE AWAY AHEAD

Farmers Will Soon Be Able to Pick a Propitious Harvest Week Far in Advance—American Weather Maps Now Being Prepared Which Will Record Conditions Through Siberia.

Beginning Nov. 1 the United States weather map will practically be extended over the entire northern hemisphere, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Globe.

Maps are now being prepared for use by the forecasters of the government which will include Alaska, Tonks and Ekaterinburg, in Siberia. In addition, the "ice-landic low," which means the area of low winter barometer of the north Atlantic, will soon begin making reports, by cable. The opening of cable service to Iceland, recently announced, will make this possible.

Already the weather bureau receives reports from western Europe, including London, Paris, Hamburg and a half dozen points in Great Britain. Every morning a cable from the Azores covers conditions in the south Atlantic region, including Lisbon, and arrangements are now being completed for daily reports from the "Bering Sea Low" barometric area. In the summer storm season the West Indies region is well reported.

Broadly speaking, the northern hemisphere will after Nov. 1 report daily on its weather conditions to the weather bureau at Washington. There will still be large gaps, as, for instance, the Atlantic island chain from Alaska across to Siberia, which will have to be covered later by governments for wireless reports or for reports from steamships crossing the Pacific by the "great circle" route. None, Alaska, will for the time being be the extreme report from American territory to the far northwest. As soon as possible—which means when observers can be engaged—reports from interior Alaska will be secured.

Beyond this, in the not distant future, there will be an international weather reporting arrangement, just as there is now an international postal agreement, by which the world's weather conditions will be reported in co-operation, and forecasts will be made covering long periods of time.

"But how long?" was asked of Chief Forecaster Garriott of the weather bureau.

"We shall be able," he replied, "to at least notify the Kansas farmer of the outlook for weather long enough in advance to enable him to pick a propitious harvest week. It is not only important to tell what the weather will be, but to tell how long it will last; to forecast a rainy week and a fair week."

"We will be able to advise people when they will be safe in cutting their hay and allowing it to cure on the ground or to advise the farmer whether a coming week will be safe for cutting hay. A state fair management will be able to learn at the beginning of its week of entertainment whether the weather is likely to be good or whether a postponement would be desirable."

Areas of low and high barometer, chasing one another over the earth determine weather. In winter the continental areas, being colder than the ocean areas, constitute the areas of high barometer, while the great water areas constitute the lows. In summer these conditions are just reversed, because in summer the lands are warmer and the oceans colder.

It all relates back to the ancient principle that heat expands and cold contracts.

The air above a great land area under a July sun extends, rarefies, becomes light, and, therefore, its weight will sustain a less column in the barometer. So in summer, because it is hotter on land than on the seas, the "low" areas in general are above the land areas. In winter, because it is warmer over the oceans than the lands, the atmosphere over the oceans is lighter than over the lands. So conditions are reversed, and the "high" areas are the land or continental areas, and the "low" are the oceanic areas.

This is the basis of the whole business of weather forecasting.

The greatest land area on earth is the immense continental plain from St. Petersburg east to the Pacific—7,000 miles in extent. This area has more to do with making weather than any other like area on earth because land is subject to greater extremes of heat and cold than water. Hence, to forecast weather, it is desirable to know conditions prevailing over this greatest land area. It is this which the weather bureau has now arranged to do.

The arrangements recently closed with the Central Physical observatory at St. Petersburg will secure reports from the points named in this great area of land expanse. With them the whole realm of possibilities of weather forecasting will be vastly enlarged. Washington will for the first time be able to reckon intelligently with world conditions, and as the experts become familiar with these conditions in detail they will make accurate forecasts for a far longer time than ever before.

GIFT FROM CANTERBURY.

Ammon For National Cathedral Constructed of Historic Stones.

Randall Thomas Davidson, archbishop of Canterbury, will commemorate his visit to Washington two years ago by presenting to the National Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul at Washington a valuable and historic gift, says a Washington special to the New York World.

During the recent repairs made on Canterbury cathedral the archbishop gathered some of the oldest stones in the edifice and had them made into an ambon, or pulpit. These, sculptured by William D. Carver, architect in charge of the cathedral, will be given to the American cathedral in memory of the Christian martyr Stephen Langton, once archbishop of Canterbury.

The ambon stands ten feet in height and nine feet in length. The left hand base-relief represents the venerable Bede, the earliest Christian author, dictating the last chapter of the Anglo-Saxon translation of the gospel of St. John on his deathbed, A. D. 735. The right hand base-relief represents the martyrdom of William Tyndale, translator of the first printed English Bible, 1525.

The ambon will be placed in the little sanctuary, which is now being enlarged.

MICHIGAN GIRL'S CONSTANCY.

Her Promise Kept After Her Fiance Had Lost Eyes and Hands.

A noble case of constancy on the part of a girl is shown by the presence recently of a bride couple, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Nelson of Ishpeming, Mich., at the Plankington House in Milwaukee, Wis., says a correspondent of the Kansas City Star. Mr. Nelson is blind and has lost both hands, but that did not deter his bride from keeping her promise, and they were married a few days ago in the Michigan city and soon after started on their wedding trip.

Mr. Nelson was the superintendent of a mine in Ishpeming. His fiancée was the daughter of a man in comfortable circumstances. They had been engaged about a year. Mr. Nelson while carrying a box of dynamite caps fell, and the entire box exploded, destroying both his eyes and tearing one hand off and one arm at the elbow.

Day it in Janesville.

Heard "Call of the Wild."

At the call of the wild recently a St. Bernard dog in a Lake Superior lumber camp joined a wolf pack and married one of their number. He used to come into camp for food; but as his mate would never venture within gun shot, he carried a part of his meat out to her. A ball trigger attacked him near the camp, and he was getting the worst of it when the she wolf ran to his assistance, and between them they neatly killed the terror.

"Monsieur greatly honors the poor dancing master when he admits him as a rival."

"And you, Dubarre, be silent!" ordered Thornecliffe sternly.

Again the Frenchman bowed humbly.

"The poor dancing master should always strive to please monsieur. And of a truth, if I'm to die for it, it pains me deeply that, dying, I cannot at the last please Sir John by producing the lady." His manner expressed only great sorrow that his failure to do so should give the lover pain.

Sir John shot black looks all about the room.

"If she's here we'll find her," he declared fiercely.

Eagerly Dubarre seized the opportunity for vindication.

"Yes, yes, let us search." As he spoke he rushed to the bed and laid hold of the curtains. Sir John winced visibly at that. It did not escape the Frenchman. Still holding the cloth, he turned, blantly questioning.

"Pray, where did the titled lover expect to find his mistress? Was she discussing theology with the humble dancing master?" Then, without waiting for reply, he jerked down the curtains, drew them off the bed and began to shake them in violent style.

"The closet!" he exclaimed and rushed toward it.

"Is the fellow mad? What are you doing?" demanded Captain Thornecliffe.

Dubarre looked up apologetically. "One never can tell, monsieur."

"Thought perhaps a girl, a half girl or possibly a girl and a half might be hidden in the curtains?"

Thornecliffe exclaimed sternly: "Dubarre, enough of this trifling."

The dancing master was all eagerness to please. "As monsieur le capitaine wishes," he said suavely, "but monsieur knows all manner of queer things may happen when a titled lover traces his affianced bride to the room of an abject dancing master." Then, turning from the captain to Sir John, he made a gesture toward the mattress.

"Will monsieur thrust his sword into the bed?" The lover winced again. "I'm sure," added Dubarre, with great earnestness, "she must scream if it touches her."

"Cease such unseemly jesting!" shouted the badgered one.

The Frenchman became mildly agitated. "I did not jest, monsieur."

"Twas your own suggestion," he said. "I wished but to make sure. Will monsieur lend me the sword?"

"No," answered Wilmerding shortly. "Enough," said Captain Thornecliffe.

Dubarre drew a small knife from his belt. "Then by myself I'll make sure," he declared and, springing suddenly on the bed, thrust the knife repeatedly into the mattress.

"Is it enough?" he asked, after a dozen thrusts, looking up.

"Come down, Dubarre," ordered Thornecliffe, laughing in spite of himself.

The Frenchman climbed down. Then, looking at his work, apostrophized the bed regretfully. "Poor bed, it was cruel treatment after many times you have comforted me, but shaking his head sadly, "when ladies of fashion seek by night the rooms of renegade dancing masters, then all things must be changed about."

Sir John had moved over beside the mantle. "The window—she might have got out by this."

Then he and Captain Thornecliffe struggled with the bar. It took several minutes of tussling before the heavy shutter moved back. Dubarre laughed and thanked them for doing something that he had been unable to do for himself.

Now the searchers stood perplexed. The simple room seemed to afford no other hiding place. Suddenly Wilmerding caught sight of the closet door. He trembled as nothing since his entrance had made him tremble. Here was the quarry run to earth at last.

"The closet!" he exclaimed and rushed toward it, crying: "Watch the French scoundrel, Hm! Don't let him escape."

Dubarre's lips were smiling. About the eyes he had grown ten years. Then Wilmerding stumbled against the clock.

The last number of the Jamesville Gazette contains, interspersed at intervals, the cabalistic letters "H. G." in heavy gothic; from which we infer that Horace Greeley is about to lecture to Jamesvillians.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Yes, we are to have the Old White Coat! Philosopher here on the 19th, and if any of the Milwaukee-villians wish to come out and hear him they may do so. Or, as Milwaukee is an out of the way, one-horse town, perhaps Greeley may have compassion on their ignorance and consent to go over there and read them an old lecture at half the usual rates.

BORES IN CAPITOL HILL.

Progress of Washington's Modern Transit Methods.

PASSENGER TUNNELS PROPOSED.

Railroads May Run Through Them "Roll Call Specials" and "Dinner Expresses" For Busy Statesmen. Library-Capitol Conduit's Value. Connection With the Government Printing Office Urged.

The "modernization" of Capitol hill at Washington by the installation of underground connections is proceeding apace, writes a special correspondent of the New York Post. When all these in course of building or projected are finally completed there will be a network of them radiating from the capitol and skirting its eastern edge.

Within a few weeks the greatest of these projects, the twin bore through Capitol hill from the south or Potomac side to the new Union station, will be completed and ready for railroad traffic. These parallel tubes under First street, on which fronts the Library of Congress, will afford southern rail traffic direct and speedy ingress and egress at the new railroad center of the capital. The southbound tunnel is already complete, with track laid and ballasted ready for use. The other track, for trains approaching the station, requires but little work for its similar completion.

There are many surface indications of the fact that the tunnels were burrowed out and not built on the open cut method. As the level of the tracks is forty feet below the street, the boring process was given preference. Soon a sinking of the asphalt street and the ornamental coping of the capitol grounds was noticed. The section affected was fenced off and the surface filled in to bring it up to the former level. But the sinking has apparently continued, and there is now a noticeable depression all along that part of the line in front of the library.

This has caused renewed concern for the safety of the greatly admired bronze group of Neptune, his sea horses and mermaids adorning the fountain adjacent to the outside staircase, constituting the main approach to the building. So far the group and the basin proper show no sign of damage, but the granolithic pavement abutting on the basin has already opened up seven-eighths inch cracks along the lines parallel to the tunnel.

The first underground railway on "the hill" was the conduit connecting the library with the capitol. It is not large enough to transport people, but can rush a stack of books from the librarian's desk in the great reading room to the substation just outside of Statuary hall in the capitol in a few moments. This and the railroad tunnel first mentioned are the two extremes in the new Capitol hill underground service. The second in point of size will be the passenger tunnels which will connect the capitol with the new senate office building to the northeast and with the house of representatives office building to the southeast. There are likely to be short underground connections also between these buildings and the railroad tunnel itself. They may not appear to be of much practical advantage to the general public at first glance, but there is an interesting intimation that the railroads may run "roll call specials" for busy statesmen, landing them directly at the doors of their committee rooms, and "dinner expresses" to rush them away at the end of the day, so that they need lose not a moment of time. If so, the underground connections, sheltering busy statesmen from storm and avoiding the necessity of cab hire and the risk of missing the train in the end, will surely prove popular.

Another type of underground connection is urged to connect the capitol and the government printing office. The exact size remains to be determined, but it will be larger than the connection with the library and not so big as the passageways to the office buildings. It may be only a pneumatic tube eventually, but a greater likelihood is that it will be an electric railway affair, with a capacity of several hundred pounds of government "literature" at a trip. There has long been a demand at the capitol for a more up-to-date method than that now in vogue of transporting "copy" from appropriation committee rooms to the big printery. Bicycle messengers do the work as acceptably as possible, but there are bound to be delays, due to stormy weather, physical fatigue or punctured tires. Then the able statesmen at the capitol may sit and fume, while clerks telephone frantically back and forth to locate the missing copy and proofs. Meanwhile the poor, exhausted messenger may be fording a swollen gutter in a storm or wading tire tape over a puncture. The experience of Senator Hale on the last day of the last session of congress, when he was so exasperated by slips and delays between the capitol and printery that he set in motion a joint investigation to locate the blame, will be one of the things which will aid in establishing some automatic connection in the near future.

When such suggestions have been made before they called for a pneumatic tube. The impossibility of following a direct line because of a deep railroad cut intervening balked the project then. Soon, however, this cut will be filled in and the train service transferred to the new Union station. When this is done the tube can be laid straight from point to point.

POISON SQUAD QUARTERS.

Pleasant Dining Room Being Prepared For Wiley's Experimenters.

A new kitchen and dining room are being provided for the poison squad of the bureau of chemistry, which will begin operations in a few days to experiment with the effect of saltpeter in foods, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. Dr. Wiley, under whose direction the squad is eating, intends to have the experiments made with the best of arrangements, and the kitchen, which is being especially built for the squad's use, is to be of the most sanitary character. The new dining room is bright and attractive, and the poison eaters will have no reason to complain of unattractive quarters.

Dr. Wiley has not yet issued his call for volunteers for the coming year's work, but a number of the old squad who have been at the business of experimenting with chemical food for several years will re-enlist, and the chemistry officials find no difficulty in getting recruits. Most of the men in the squad are young clerks from the bureau of chemistry. They have returned from their vacations prepared to begin the saltpeter diet with zest. The experiment this year is regarded as especially interesting because of the general use of saltpeter in preserving and coloring meats. The results will be surprising to a great many people if it is found that ordinary corned beef put up with saltpeter is not healthful. Nearly all the other preservatives of meats and canned foods have been ruled out by the secretary of agriculture in the meat inspection regulations as a result of the tests made by Dr. Wiley's poison squad.

GUMDROPS FOR PET BASS.

Trained Fish Then Catches Other Fish For His Owner.

Everybody up Mill Rift way has heard of J. Floyd Monlony's trained black bass, says a Fort Jervis (N. Y.) correspondent of the New York Evening World. At present it weighs seven pounds. He caught the bass when it was only three inches long, kept it in a wash tub, raised it on a bottle and taught it to attack other fish as well as eels.

Monlony gives a gumdrop to the bass every time it brings in a fish. On the "long track" in the river the other day he fed his pet thirty-nine gumdrops, and then, the supply being exhausted, the bass refused to tackle another fish.

It prefers gumdrops to hobjacks, lampers, minnows or angleworms, and during the fifteen years Monlony has owned it the bass has caught more than two tons of fish for its owner.

New Toys Remarkably Ingenious.

American ingenuity is not directed largely to the production of novel toys for children, and most of the inventive genius in that line is developed abroad, says a correspondent of the New York Press. France seems to take the lead in devices for children's amusement. At the exhibition of toys recently held in Paris there were many wonderful things. Some were not likely to make appeal to the childish fancy unless the youngster's mind had been developed to the point where he demanded complexity in playthings, but the exhibition was especially interesting to the adult. In Paris, it is said, one always may gauge popular opinion by popular toys. One of the best liked contrivances in the exhibition was called "the motor car catastrophe." A little clock-work motor car ran freely until something apparently went wrong with the machinery, whereupon the car broke into several pieces and hurled out its passengers. Then there was a war automobile, which carried cannon and fired shots as it went along. A more useful device was an alarm clock that fired off a pistol. The inventor says he will improve it by inventing a lever bedstead in connection with it.

New Form of Lookout.

A new lookout for artillerymen has just been invented by Underengineer Marchand of the fort of St. Miel, near the German frontier. It consists of a metal staff telescoping into the shaft of the ammunition wagon, enabling the officer to raise himself fifteen feet above the earth's surface and direct the fire of the battery.

Tribute to October.

October, month of the noonday
Soft as the summer dawn,
Month of the Indian summer
Poets have dwelt upon;
Beautiful, amber October,
Month of the out of doors,
All of the charms of the autumn,
Glorious month, are yours.

October, month of the azure
Soft as a maiden's eyes,
Month of the hunter's bright moon
Sailing the silent skies;
Wonderful, yellow October,
Month of the bountiful stores,
All of the riches of nature,
Beautiful month, are yours.

October, month of the bobwhite
Piping at early morn,
Month of the provident harvest
Gleaned in the fields of corn;
Cool and delightful October,
Fresh as the winds from the seas,
Month of the spirit of winter
Singing upon the breeze.

October, month of the colors
Painted upon the world,
Month of the blood red bur oak
And of the leaves turned gold;
Colorful, wizard October,
Painter of shrub and grass,
Making the redbird jealous
Of the bright sassafras.

October, month of the wild duck
Tempering the sun at morn,
Month of inspiring music
Wound from the hunter's horn;
Out of door, bracing October,
When the soft skies are blue,
No other month is so lovely,
And none is so loved as you.

BABY CHICKS A NEW DISH.

Served at Hotel Tables in the Place of Squabs.

INDUSTRY WITH BIG POSSIBILITIES.

Tender and Delicious, the Demand For the Young Fowl Exceeds the Supply—Are Hatched in Incubators and Marketed When Six Weeks Old. Hotels Also Buy Them Alive.

If chickens could talk a great outcry of indignation might be heard from the poultry yards against a new industry recently begun in the east, says a Columbus (Mo.) correspondent of the Kansas City Star. They have good grounds for protest, for if the new industry succeeds and spreads over the country the lives of a vast majority of the chickens would be curtailed to the limit of about six weeks.

The industry is perhaps due to the fact that the present demand for squabs is ahead of the supply. A substitute was needed, and some one hit upon the idea of serving baby chickens in place of the latter. It is alleged that the consumer can't tell the difference, and it is even said that the young chickens are more tender and superior in flavor. Some declare them the greatest delicacy that ever tickled a human palate. Be this as it may, the new industry is gaining great headway and eastern hotel and restaurant men are offering high prices for baby chickens. At present the demand is far ahead of the supply for the simple reason that very few poultry breeders are aware that such a demand exists. Western poultry breeders are yet in ignorance of the new industry, which may in the end revolutionize the entire chicken business.

Whether it will interfere with the squab industry cannot yet be told. The very fact that chickens are being substituted for squabs shows how great is the demand for the latter. It may be remembered that the squab industry owes its origin to the scarcity of quails. When the quail supply failed squabs were substituted, and now when the demand for the latter is ahead of the supply baby chickens are pushed into the breach. If the new chicken business succeeds as well as the squabs there is no telling what may be used when a substitute for chicks is demanded.

The poultry yards where the baby chickens are raised for market resemble squab farms in the manner of construction. Woven wire fences are used and the whole business is conducted inside an inclosure of this kind, the chicks not being permitted to roam about in the old fashioned way. The feed is the same as that given to chickens destined to live a longer life, but is more plentiful, as the object is to fatten them as much as possible at an early age. All are raised in incubators and the hatching is so timed that a new brood is turned out every day in the month. This is made necessary by the market demand. The buyers demand that a certain number be furnished regularly every day and make contracts with the chicken raisers to this effect. The fact that it is rather difficult to furnish a given number daily owing to the possibility of disease, accidents or the like is one of the few drawbacks to the business.

As soon as the chicks are hatched they are taken from the incubator and carried to the pens or yards. Each group has a separate yard in which is a brood house kept warm by means of a lighted lamp inside. Each yard is surrounded by a woven wire fence which is so arranged that it may be thrown open when it is desired that all the chickens should run together. Around the small yards is a high wire fence surrounding all the pens to protect the chickens from danger of rats or prowling animals. When the chickens are large enough to grow feathers, or about six weeks old, they are put in boxes and sold alive to hotels and restaurants. It is usual for the owner to have a contract with a particular buyer who generally agrees to take all that he can produce. It can be seen that to supply even a single large hotel or restaurant is a big undertaking and it is often difficult to keep up with the demand. The general demand has been rapidly increasing, thanks to the ravenous appetite which the public seems to have developed for infant chickens, and the indications are that the new industry will soon spread over the entire country.

There are several advantages in the new method which should not be overlooked. The fact that the chickens are marketed at such an early age not only cuts down the expense of feeding to a figure far below the usual cost, but in an equal proportion curtails the danger of loss from accident or disease. There are other advantages so obvious as to need no mention, and, all things considered, it looks as if the new industry has big possibilities.

Union Law For Monkeys.

Monkeys are to have the time of their lives in Kenosha, Wis. Hereafter they will work but four hours a day. Any Italian who works his monkey overtime will be subjected to arrest and prosecution by the Humane society, says a Kenosha dispatch. There has been an influx of Italian organ grinders and monkeys to Kenosha during the last few weeks, and it was discovered by a member of the Humane society that the monkeys worked twelve and fourteen hours daily. A meeting was called, and it was decided their labor was too strenuous, so the hours were fixed at from 10 to 12 o'clock in the morning and 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL CATS GIVEN SALUTE.

For 25 Years Soldiers in India Paid Honors to Pussy.

In Poona, at the government house for more than a quarter of a century, every cat which passed out of the front door at dark was saluted by the sentry, who presented arms to the terrified pussy.

It seems that in 1833 Sir Robert Grant, governor of Bombay, died in the government house, Poona, and on the evening of the day of his death a cat was seen to leave the house by the front door and to walk up and down a particular path precisely as the late governor had been used to do after sunset.

A Hindu sentry observed and reported this to the sepoy of his faith, and they laid the matter before a priest, who explained to them the mystery of the dogma of the transmigration of souls.

"In this cat," he said, "was reincarnated the soul of the deceased Gov. Grant, and it should, therefore, be treated with the military honors due to his excellency."

As, however, the original sentry could not identify the particular cat he had seen on the evening of the day of Sir Robert's death, it was decided that every cat which passed out of the main entrance after dark should be saluted as the avatar of his excellency.

Thus, for over a quarter of a century, every cat that passed out after sunset had military honors paid to it, not by Hindu sentries only, but—such is the infection of a superstition—by Mahometan, native Christian and even Jewish soldiers.—South China Post.

NOT THE FATTED CALF.

This is a Different Parable But it Brought Desired Results.

A good story is told of a couple of farmers living a few miles apart. One day one called on the other, happening around at dinner time. The person called upon, by the way, was rather a penurious old fellow. He sat at the table enjoying his dinner. The visitor drew toward the table, expecting the old farmer to invite him to dine. The old farmer kept on eating.

"What's the news up your way, neighbor? No news, eh?"

Presently a thought struck the visitor. "Well, yes, friend; I did hear of one item of news worth mentioning."

"Ha! what is it?"

"Neighbor John has a cow that has five calves."

"Is that so? Good gracious! What in thunder does the fifth calf do when the others are feeding?"

"Why, he stands and looks on, just as I do, like a dumb fool."

"Mary, put on another plate," drawled the farmer, as he caught the point.—Judge's Magazine of Fun.
